Note was made that NEP's work in California was begun only after the Synod had given permission to do so. He noted that in accord with MOP Appendix C., Annex 1, "How to Receive and Care for Candidates for the Ministry", Mr. Anderson has declined to seek licensure and instead is seeking ordination (#24). The Team concurs with the request of Mr. Anderson, believing his trial for ministry has been made (#25) not requiring a further probation period and recommends that Presbytery accept his request and refer him to the Credentials Team for ordination examination. Mr. Anderson was asked to describe his practical experience in ministry, and he did so. The motion passed.
- 080625 TE Carr reported that Nathan Carlson, Student of Theology graduated from Biblical Theological Seminary. He describing Mr. Carlson's current situation and thoughts about the future. Note was made that he anticipates being examined for licensure at the Fall Stated Meeting.

Mr. Anderson indicated no exception to any part of the Westminster Standards and subscribes to them fully.

OUTREACH NORTHEAST REPORT June 2008 Synod Meeting

Your committee continues to be extremely active as we balance the extension of the presbytery within the Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia area while responding to requests that come from the outlying areas of our geographical bounds.

KOREAN CHURCES

The ONA Team wants to emphasize its continuing commitment to our Korean brothers and to let them know that they are very welcome in the presbytery. In light of our limited resources, limited time and limited knowledge of the needs of First and Second Generation Korean churches, it remains our policy to rely upon the advice of the Korean Fellowship Churches for direction about admission to the presbytery of both particular congregations and mission works

The committee, working through G J Gerard is ready to report on several new Korean churches. The "See Him" church under the direction of Mr. J. B. Oh has applied for membership. TE Ron Pritts was asked to meet with this group and the committee awaits the result of his report. The “Living Stone Church” of Cincinnati, Ohio, under the direction of TE Paul Kim has forwarded to Rev Gerard the application papers for this congregation. Rev Gerard has reported that they are in order, so we will be recommending that this congregation be “taken under care,” of the presbytery. (This is following the two step process that we used with the “Philadelphia Church.”)

CHRIST MISSION (GROVE CITY)

TE David Johnston and your chairman have visited Grove City multiple times to meet with TE Iain Duguid and to survey the area surrounding. TE and Mrs. Johnston fellowshipped with the worshipping community that is assembling in Grove City. The ONE team is satisfied that there is room for another “reformed” work in the area. TE Johnston has a separate written report about the findings of the ONE team and we are recommending that the presbytery go ahead with the work. Synod has money allocated to support this work along with the money that we authorized at the Spring meeting. We are recommending a Call be issued to TE Duguid to commence this work in earnest.

COVENANT MISSION (New Cumberland, West Virginia)

Rick Anderson has completed his seminary training and is sensing a call to plant a church

In his home town area of New Cumberland, West Virginia. In consultation with the ONA Board, the ONE Team is in agreement that Rick labor part-time in developing the New Cumberland work. A Call to Rick Anderson should be forthcoming from the Lifeline Church. The plan is for Rick to be funded through the ONA Internship program while he attends Church Planting Classes and the Assessment Center. With the conformation and leading of the Holy Spirit on this work it would be our intention to solicit a funding package from Synod at the November meeting of the ONA board and then to issue a Call to Rick Anderson as a Mission Developer commencing January 2009.

FINANCING THE KINGDOM:

The presbytery is to be reminded that we have committed resources to the work in Grove City under the direction of Iain Duguid. We have also made commitments to Rick Anderson for the New Cumberland, West Virginia work. These two commitments will exhaust the balance of our $80,000+ fund. We are willing to entertain requests for funding new works, but you need to be aware that ALL our funds are committed.

The ONE team desires to be proactive in beginning new works and so we commend the need for funds to each church and ask that presbytery giving be made a priority item for your 2009 stewardship planning.

RECOMMENDATIONS: (Approved recommendations included at par. 080616-080621.)

DRAFT

May 1, 2008, Grove City NAPARC Gathering

The meeting was a response to the call of Presbytery of the Ohio, Orthodox Presbyterian Church. The impetus for their call was the proposal of Northeast Presbytery to plant a church in Grove City, PA, with TE Iain Duguid as Mission Developer. Representatives came from the OPC, PCA, RPCNA and RCUS. Northeast Presbytery was represented by Moderator Johnston, TE Jim Wittke and TE Iain Duguid.

Rev. Dan Knox, of Ohio Presbytery, moderated the meeting and summarized events that led to the call for the meeting. His summary included our Presbytery's receiving Iain Duguid and subsequently acting to move ahead with a church plant that had earlier been rejected by the Ascension Presbytery of the PCA.

Northeast Presbytery presentation

Northeast Presbytery presented the case for why we consider it appropriate to proceed with a proposal that was rejected by a sister presbytery and is opposed by the Reformed pastors in the local area. (Our presentation is available separately. There was neither comment nor discussion of our presentation.)

The meeting then moved to presentations of opposition and accusation.

Opposition Presentations

It became clear early in the meeting that Iain Duguid's proposal to plant a church got entwined with unwise things that were said, and misunderstandings that multiplied. An almost impenetrable web of misunderstanding and distrust quickly spread within Ascension Presbytery, and to outside pastors.

Accusation: TE Duguid has said, "Other Reformed churches in Grove City don't preach the Gospel."

The most volatile accusation raised against TE Duguid is that "He said that the Reformed churches in the Grove City area don't preach the gospel." When it was asked in the meeting who was the source of such claims, no one seemed to know. One person said, "We keep hearing it from students." Another acknowledged that it came from second, third and fourth-hand reports.

The argument seemed to be that "It must be so because it keeps being reported." In a court of law, this kind of report would be quickly disallowed as hearsay, and therefore not acceptable as evidence. In this meeting the accusation was repeated and seemed to be accepted as valid, despite the presence of TE Duguid, who said, "This is not what I think and it is not what I have said."

A pastor from the RPCNA challenged everyone present that in the face of Mr. Duguid's clear and unequivocal denial in our presence, we all have a responsibility to oppose such a claim, ask who was the source, tell the bearer of the report that we know what they are saying is wrong, and tell the reporter that they must go back and tell their informant that it is wrong. There was silence in the room.

Accusation: Refusal to submit to authority and "presbytery shopping"

Another accusation is that Iain Duguid refused to submit to the authority of Ascension Presbytery when they rejected his church-plant proposal, and went "presbytery shopping." When we examined TE Duguid for admission to Northeast Presbytery, we talked with him about why he sought membership in our Presbytery. This is a matter about which we have concern because of our NAPARC relationships.

We have learned from difficult experience in our own Presbytery that it's important that a presbytery and minister are a proper fit for each other. Within the past few years, Northeast Presbytery received a minister who had been a member of another ARP presbytery. Although we received him gladly and did not find any defect in either him or his theology, within a short time it became clear that he did not “fit” in the presbytery. He became a focus and cause of controversy. He was not chargeable with any deficiency, error, or misconduct. Nevertheless, it seemed clear that he needed to be in a different presbytery—perhaps even a different denomination—where he would fit better. That is what finally happened, to the great benefit of the man, his congregation, our presbytery and his new presbytery.

Northeast Presbytery's discussion with Iain Duguid caused us to think that a similar situation may have occurred in his relationship with Ascension Presbytery. This is neither an accusation nor a claim of fault against Ascension Presbytery. It is merely an observation that such things occur, as they did with us, and that the best remedy often is a change of presbytery. We viewed this as seeking peace in the Lord's house.

Accusation: Harm to existing congregations

Presentations in the meeting claimed that harm has already been done to the existing congregations in and around Grove City. When a person present in the meeting asked for specifics, no supporting evidence was presented for any actual harm. In fact, the existing Reformed congregations are all thriving and have very little space for absorbing more people.

Accusation: Harm to Reformed unity in the community

There were also claims that emotions have been inflamed within the Reformed community of Grove City. The people we talked with outside the meeting are themselves very involved in this “Reformed community” and did not see this as a significant issue. It seemed clear to us that the accusers clamoring against TE Duguid share in responsibility if there is any such harm.

Obvious message: Personal animosity toward TE Duguid

The most obvious message communicated to us in the NAPARC gathering in Grove City was not in the carefully-crafted words that were spoken. The most obvious message to us was the intensity of personal animosity toward Iain Duguid. This was a very disappointing—even depressing—aspect of the meeting. We were grieved by the continuing thread of personal animosity in more than one presentation.

At one point the antagonism descended to the level of a person's making accusations of doctrinal error against Mr. Duguid. The accuser has, in both written and oral communication, demonstrated a high level of personal antagonism toward TE Duguid. This antagonism had the effect of devaluing what he presented in the meeting.

Considerations toward a wise decision

It seemed to us that in order for Northeast Presbytery to make a godly, wise and well-informed decision about the matters presented in Grove City, we needed more information and a broader perspective than was presented in the meeting. Therefore, we continued gathering information, seeking understanding, and talking with people in the area. The perspective we have gained has considerable discontinuity with the monolithic presentation given in the meeting.

The opposition in and around Grove City seems to be driven by three pastors, all of whom are defensive and emotional in what they say. They are all orthodox men who have sterling reputations as pastors. They are respected in their presbyteries. We value that respect and their reputations. Nevertheless, for the following reasons, we find ourselves inclined to disallow the case that they presented.

First is the emotion and animosity that were evident, as mentioned above. They devalue the arguments presented and disgrace those who have been lured into the trap and attacked a fellow Christian.

Second is the need for an additional Reformed work in Grove City. Resistance to starting an additional Reformed work in Grove City has already added considerable impetus for two new Reformed works in the nearby town of Slippery Rock. Those works are attracting students and faculty from Grove City College. One Grove City person we talked with encouraged us “not to miss the opportunity to bless our community with a church plant in Grove City.” This person is a leader in a Reformed church. Another person said, “I am a member of one of the opposing churches. I think that another Reformed church is needed, and the church plant should go forward.” These voices were not heard in the NAPARC meeting. Both people spoke their thoughts to us without our soliciting either person's viewpoint.

Third, there is evidence that this mission is already meeting needs that the existing churches do not have the capacity to meet. There are more community residents and students attending the Bible studies than could be absorbed into those churches, and TE Duguid is already taking on pastoral ministry and evangelistic outreach that adds to that which is being done at present.

While we wish to avoid any action that would be offensive to our NAPARC brothers, we have a greater concern for strengthening and extending the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. We believe that this work is needed for even more reasons than are mentioned here. Turning back at this point could actually be burdensome to the existing churches, although they do not see that possibility at this time.

Recommendation:

Our recommendation is that the work proceed according to plan, and that we communicate our decision to the Ascension Presbytery of the PCA, the Presbytery of the Ohio of the OPC, Presbytery of the Alleghenies of the RPCNA and the Covenant East Classis of the RCUS.
