MEMORANDUM

FROM: Cindy Scott, Administrative Officer

RE: Income Tax Exclusion of Payments from ARPC Retirement and Disability Plans

DATE: November 2023

The purpose of this memorandum is to explain the housing allowance income tax exclusion that is available to ministers who receive disability or retirement income payments from the above-referenced ARPC plans.

Section 107 of the Internal Revenue Code provides an income tax exclusion for payments of compensation that are made to a minister as a rental allowance to the extent that the minister uses the rental allowance to rent or make mortgage payments on a residence, including amounts used to pay for utilities and expenses directly related to providing a home, but not to include expenses for food or domestic help. For a payment to qualify for exclusion from income under Code section 107, the payment must be compensation which is designated as a housing allowance in an appropriate resolution of the Church and the payment must be used to provide housing.

Although 100% of the payments a retired or disabled minister receives from the above-referenced ARPC Plans are designated by Board of Benefits as housing allowance, you should keep in mind that only that portion of the payments used in the calendar year in which received to provide a residence, including utilities, is excludable from your income under Code section 107. In addition, the Internal Revenue Code requires the amount you can exclude under Code section 107 for any one year cannot exceed the fair rental value of your residence plus utilities. For example, if you made a $20,000 down payment on a residence in one year but the fair rental value (plus utilities) for your residence was only $8,000 for the year, the Internal Revenue Code requires that the Code section 107 exclusion only applies to a maximum of $8,000.

Since the excludable amount of retirement or disability payments you receive from the above-referenced ARPC Plans depends upon the amount you actually use to pay housing expenses, the Form 1099R you receive for reporting distributions from the ARPC Plans is unchecked in Item 2a (taxable amount of payments) and checked in Item 2b (taxable amount not determined). Depending upon your own individual circumstances, it is possible that the total amount reported in Item 1 "gross distribution" is excludable from your income as a housing allowance.

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 reinstated the deduction of mortgage interest and real estate taxes from a minister's taxable income to the extent such payments are covered by a tax-free housing allowance. These items can be deducted on Form 1040, Schedule A.

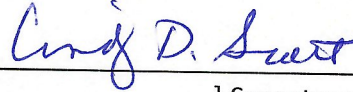

Important Comment Concerning Beneficiaries of a Deceased Minister: The income tax exclusion for a housing allowance under Code section 107 does not apply to a beneficiary of a deceased minister.

Whereas, Internal Revenue Code Section 107, as well as related IRS Regulations and Revenue Rulings, provide that the portion of a retired minister's retirement plan, pension or disability payment designated as a rental/housing allowance by the national governing body of a religious denomination having control over the denomination's retirement and benefit plans is excludable from the retired or disabled minister's gross income under Section 107 of the Code; and

Whereas, the Board of Benefits of the General Synod of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church is the body having control over the retirement and benefit plans of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church,

Now, Therefore, be it Resolved that effective January 1, 2024, 100 percent of each retired or disabled minister's retirement plan payment or disability benefit received from the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Retirement Plan, Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church 403(b)(9) Retirement Plan and other plans administered by the Board, as part of his compensation for past services, is designated as a rental/housing allowance in accordance with the provisions of Section 107 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Be it Further Resolved that these designations as a housing allowance shall apply to calendar year 2024 and all future years unless otherwise provided

Be it Further Resolved that the amounts so designated as rental/housing allowance are excludable from gross income of the recipient only to the extent that said amounts are used to rent or provide a home. Further, the amount eligible for the Section 107 exclusion in any individual case may not exceed the fair rental value of the retired or disabled minister's home (including furnishings and appurtenances) plus the cost of utilities. To the extent a greater amount is designated as rental/housing allowance, the designation will be ineffectual with respect to such amount.

Detail: The purpose of this Housing Allowance Designation Resolution is to comply with the provisions of Section 107 of the Internal Revenue Code and Revenue Ruling 75-22. Section 1.107-1(b) of the Income Tax Regulations provides, in part, that the term "rental allowance" means an amount paid to a minister to rent or provide a home if such amount is designated as rental allowance pursuant to official action taken by the employing church or other qualified organization. Revenue Ruling 75-22 recognizes that in the case of a retired minister, where the relationship with the local church or congregation has been severed, the national governing body of a religious denomination having complete control over the retirement plan is the proper organization to make the housing allowance designation. Additionally, the resolutions cover those individuals receiving disability pensions or benefits as compensation for past services to a congregation or denomination. This Resolution is consistent with the Internal Revenue Code, Revenue Rulings 63-156 and 75-22.
